PRESIDENT PRAISES
SCIENTIFIC FARMING

Farm Demonstration Agents Told by
Mr. Wilson of Value of Their Work.

President Wilson expressed his keen interest in the development of scientific farming in the United States when fifty or more farm demonstration agents of the Department of Agriculture called upon him yesterday. They were introduced by Secretary of Agriculture Houston.

"I am extremely glad to have this opportunity of expressing my great interest in this work, and interest which is not of recent origin," said the President. "It constitutes the kind of work which it seems to me is the only kind which generates real education, that is to say, the demonstrative process and the personal touch of the man who does the demonstrating. It is a matter of some character that we farmers, in some parts of the country at least, have not been producing as much per acre as the farmers in the old and so-called worn-out soils of the old continents, and it is a matter of pride with me that we should now be overtaking their lead in that respect and vindicating the intelligence and enterprise of the American farmer all over the country. I congratulate you upon your opportunity to do a work so fundamentally important to the country at large."
